The army behind you, the Dentist.

Addiction is a complicated disease that affects people of all ages, backgrounds, and ethnicities. It is hard to understand what causes some people to be more prone to addiction than others. Usually, a number of factors contribute to the disease. These can include genetics, environmental stress, and personality traits. We all know people with addictions, and we see it everyday. Even though dentists aren't managing methadone or suboxone dosages, many of our patients suffer from other addictions, like cigarette smoke and sugar intake. Last week I had the opportunity to participate in a focus group with Oral Health Ohio and others. We discussed the development of Ohio's 2023-2027 State Oral Health Plan as well as how to guide actions taken by policymakers, advocates, educators, and providers. During the discussion, the moderator asked what we can do to have better oral health in Ohio. My mind wandered to the days where I am the most exhausted, the days I spend educating multiple patients about decay. I know I am not the first person that has told my patients that sugar is bad for their teeth, yet many appear undeniably confused. Others look guilty and I know they are simply addicted to sugar.

I told the group that, while I think there are many people educating the public, there is still a lack of knowledge about oral health. Education, while necessary, is sometimes not enough to overcome addiction. We have had education about the dangers of drug use for ages. The "Just Say No" campaign was huge, yet at least 107,622 people died from overdoses in 2021-more than in any other year on record. We cannot stop addiction. We can, however, attempt to change people's minds about what they do to their bodies. I believe the best thing we can do as practitioners is to continue to be educated by evidence-based science and pass our knowledge along to our patients. At the end of long workdays, I sometimes feel like I am the only one teaching my patients about the destructive potential of some of their routine habits. But I know I am not alone. During the call last week, it was moving to hear a PhD nurse practitioner student speak passionately about her research and how much she cares about oral health. And staying active in organized dentistry continuously reminds me that there is an army of educators, researchers and providers that are working along side you, the Dentist, as well.

We cannot stop addiction. We can, however, attempt to change people's minds about what they do to their bodies.

BY VICTORIA J. NIXON, MSA
Executive Director

As mentioned in my last Vicki's Voice the Ohio component Executive Directors started their own monthly meetings, where we share ideas and provide support to one another. At our last meeting, we had a key-note speaker, Diane Kinsella, Executive Director with Journey to Hope, and she talked about burnout and how it can affect every aspect of our life. From the feedback received, every one of the Executive Directors learned something about burnout – we all can experience burnout at some point in our life and it is not a terrible thing, but what we do to “survive” burnout is particularly important. I am glad that I had a chance to hear Diane since we will be having her discuss “Burnout & Recovery” at one of our CDS Member Events next year. This will be a rewarding event for you and your entire dental team, so pay close attention to my emails, our Facebook page and website for further details.

Our Program Committee has decided to add a fifth CE course to the speaker line-up for 2023, one that was scouted at the Atlanta Hinman meeting. By the first of August you will be receiving an electronic version of our 2023 Continuing Education Program. If you do not receive it by August 15th, then one of two things is possible; we do not have your current email, or it was overlooked in your inbox. I realize this can easily be done as we (I) receive numerous emails daily. That is why I will be putting in the subject line of the email “CDS 2023 CE Program”. Listed below are the dates for planning purposes!

... we all can experience burnout at some point in our life ...

February 3, 2023, Dr. Harold Crossley

March 3, 2023, Dr. Alan Budenz

April 21, 2023 – Dr. Timothy Donley

October 27, 2023 – Dr. Brian Novy

November 17, 2023 – Dr. Jimmie Harper, Jr., and Dr. Deepak Krishnan

Reminders on two especially important dates in August for our 2-Hour Radiology Update Live Sessions; August 4, 2022 and August 5, 2022 with instructor Sheri Sauer. These will be the only two sessions we will have before the end of the year, so please make sure your dental assistants know their Radiology Certificate will expire as of December 31, 2022.

I wish everyone a fun, healthy, relaxing Summer and until we meet again... take care!

Staff Invited: Dental Hygienists, Dental Assistants and Administrative Personnel of registered dentists.

CE Credits: 6.5 CE Credits Hours

First Course Description

New ceramic materials have changed the way we practice dentistry by offering a strong, esthetic, and affordable restorative option for our patients. But ceramic materials do not handle the same as metal-based restorations and improper selection or handling can lead to premature failure. This course will teach you how to select and handle different types of ceramic materials that are currently used in dentistry that will be much less confusing than typical marketing rhetoric. We will review the best clinical practices based on research studies conducted at the UAB School of Dentistry and provide pearls for you to take back to the office.

Learning Objectives

1. Review the different types of dental ceramic materials.
2. Choosing a ceramic material for anterior restorations.
3. Preparation and design considerations for posterior crowns and bridges.
4. Strategies to adjust, polish, and cut off ceramic crowns.

Second Course

Class II composite restorations remain the bread-and-butter procedure of many general dentists. Although this procedure may seem trivial, there are many clinical factors which lead to a long-lasting restoration, including diagnosis, isolation, caries removal, cavity preparation, use of liner, matrix and wedge placement, bonding technique, composite placement, and finishing and polishing. This course aims to review the techniques for each of these steps based on current evidence.

Learning Objectives

1. Discuss treatment guidelines for interproximal caries and caries removal endpoints.
2. Discover materials and techniques to promote a long-lasting adhesive bond and create a well-adapted restoration.
3. Analyze matrix utilization and contouring instruments to achieve a tight and well-contoured contact.

About the Speaker

Nathaniel Lawson DMD PhD is the Director of the Division of Biomaterials at the University of Alabama at Birmingham School of Dentistry and the program director of the Biomaterials residency program. He graduated from UAB School of Dentistry in 2011 and obtained his PhD in Biomedical Engineering in 2012. He has served as an investigator on over 50 clinical and laboratory research grants, and published over 150 peer reviewed articles, book chapters, and research abstracts. His research interests are the mechanical, optical, and biologic properties of dental materials and clinical evaluation of new dental materials. He was the 2016 recipient of the Stanford New Investigator Award and the 2017 3M Innovative Research Fellowship both from the American Dental Association. He has served on the American Dental Association Council of Scientific Affairs and is on the editorial board of The Journal of Adhesive Dentistry and Compendium. He has lectured nationally and internationally about dental materials. He also works as a general dentist in the UAB Faculty Practice.

Annual Shred Event

A Huge Success!

Thanks to our co-sponsor, Brian Bartish, Attorney-Founder of Kybernian Legal Solution, LLC, our annual shred event was well attended. According to Stericycle our members saved six trees this year by taking advantage of this CDS member service.

"Think, Eat, and Get Trivial" Event Highlights!

Held at Fueled Collective on April 28, 2022 attendees participated in a game of trivia as they listened to the evenings four key-note speakers: Dr. Mark Bronson, Dr. Manny Chopra, Dr. Ruchika Khetarpal, and Vicki Nixon. Everyone had a fun time and appreciated the change in venue and format!
